Nanyang Opal

Bounded by Jurong West Street 92 and 93, this development comprises 2 residential blocks that are 14-storeys high, with 221 dwelling units of 3- and 4-room flats.

The name 'Nanyang Opal' celebrates the history of the area, as it used to be the location of the former Nanyang University. The original Nanyang University Arch, which marks the entrance to the former campus, is located nearby. The name also complements those of nearby developments like 'Nanyang Emerald' and 'Nanyang Ruby'.
